

Creative Thinking – February News

These pictures showcase four different floor plans from old English cathedrals. Ken from Cary chose to use arched mats to suggest the cathedral window shape. Then a gold mat liner was used to highlight each one and create depth in the picture. With a raised upper mat, the illusion of looking through a window was complete. The ornate gold frame was used to imitate the elaborate decorations inside an old cathedral. The slate gray lower mat mirrors the ink color in the prints and the gray wash on the frame. These wonderful creations were a Christmas present to a friend. Ken, thank you for the brain stretching-experience!
